Executive Director, Michigan Women's Commission

Cheryl Bergman is the Executive Director of the Michigan Women's Commission (MWC). The MWC surveys the women of Michigan, identifies problems they face, makes recommendations to address these problems and recognizes the accomplishments of Michigan women.

Prior to the MWC, Bergman worked to elect well qualified, progressive women to local and statewide office. Her clients included Gretchen Whitmer for Governor, Governor Jennifer Granholm, Senator Debbie Stabenow, The White House Project, and many other women candidates running for local and legislative offices.

Bergman also has non-profit management and fund development experience. Clients have included Communities in Schools of Michigan, Michigan's Children, Children's Trust Fund, and Michigan Prospect. She also served as agency relations director for the St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Center and as the program administrator for the Michigan Political Leadership Program at Michigan State University (MPLP).

Bergman received her BA in Journalism from Michigan State University and remains a loyal Spartan fan.
